An Amused Eye...

“Among the calli in Venice there’s a real theatre full of joy and amusement, and that’s its crazy Carnival!”

People with their own mask, celebrating the charm of a world made of dances, tricks and unusual encounters”

I’ve seen so many times pictures about Carnival in Venice and, after all, those images made me feel a bit “sad”, though full of colors and shapes.

I guess who’s reading these lines could get the meaning.

Nowadays the Carnival in Venice is one of the most celebrated events in the world, and though the shots are interesting for the locations and people with their masks, more or less these images are always the same.

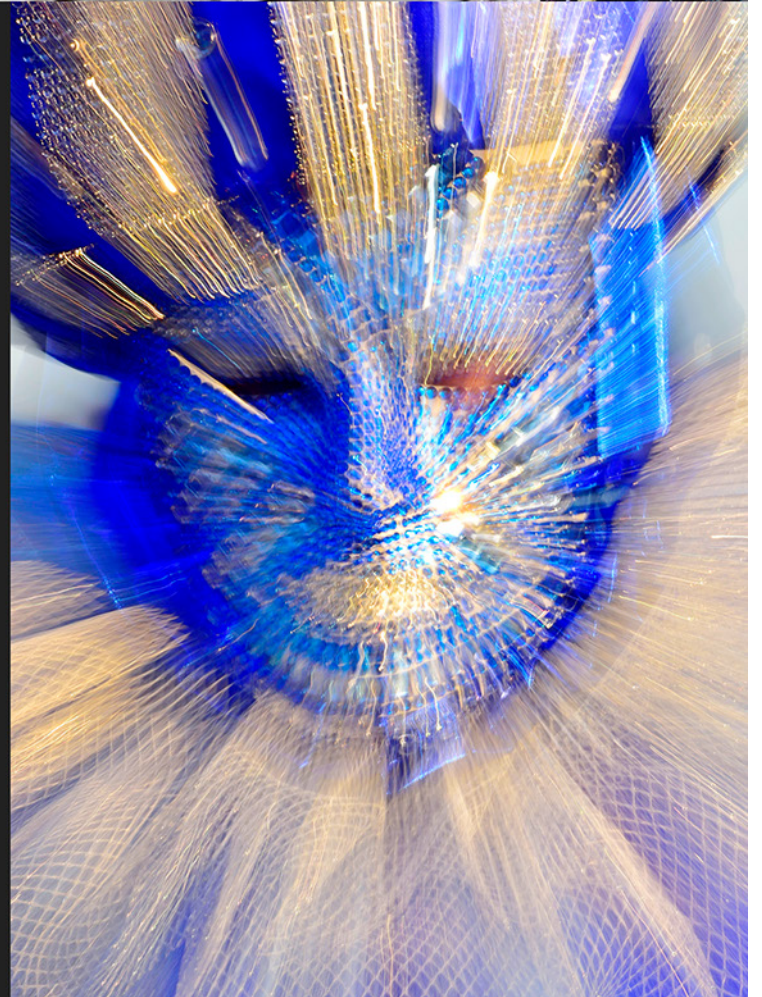

For the participants of this Photo Workshop, the Carnival in Venice will be a challenge, a step forward in that personal research of an unusual and brand new expressive form, a bit more evolved or, I'd better say, less academic, with different choices, a complete freedom to choose lenses and compositions to create an original mixture of creativity and technique.

*The whole Saturday will be devoted to shooting, while during Sunday morning will have a personal review of the shots.
Sunday afternoon will have a second and final session of shooting*

We'll be careful to events and lights, trying to improve your awareness just before shooting your image, stimulating your creativity and expanding your techniques. The shootings, considering the several and different locations and situations, will permit to compare ourselves towards a documentary and creative work-
